Winter Skin Care Tips

TOP 10 WINTER SKIN CARE TIPS

- 1. Wear The Right Clothes

Caused by high winds, low humidity, and the sun's UV rays, windburn is much more prevalent during the winter and depletes your skin's natural oils, causing dryness and irritation.

- 2. Treat Rough Elbow Skin

Skin around large joints is thicker by design, in order to protect your bones. Unfortunately, this protective skin is often prone to dryness, which can be unsightly and uncomfortable. Exfoliating this area with a body scrub or a hot washcloth, following up with a thick moisturizer can keep this area soft and smooth.

- 3. Always Wear SPF

During the winter, the sun's rays, combined with the reflection of the snow and ice, can damage your skin as much as in the summer. Be sure to apply a broad-spectrum sunscreen to all areas of your skin that will be exposed in the winter.

- 4. Stick to Warm Showers

The heat, combined with the pressure from your shower, washes away oil from your skin. This oil not only protects your skin, it makes it moist and youthful. If you love a hot, steamy shower, be sure to apply a moisturizer immediately after you dry off to seal in hydration and keep your skin from drying out.

- 5. Moisturize Chapped Lips

For extremely chapped lips, try applying Vaseline to your lips for 10 minutes and removing with a soft paper towel or cotton ball dipped in warm water. This mini hydrating mask will help to soothe discomfort and break the dehydration cycle.

- 6. Drink More Water

As your skin is more likely to dry out due to the decreased humidity, you must replenish the top level of moisture your skin gives off to protect itself by drinking more water.

- 7. Warm Your Red Nose

Rudolph's not the only one with a red nose in the winter. To bring things back to normal, run warm water over a washcloth and compress it over your nose, returning circulation. Follow up with a thin layer of moisturizer to make sure that the skin doesn't dry out.

- 8. Change Eating Habits

In order to keep your skin healthy, you will want to eat the right nutrients. Don't skip too much of the fun stuff, just be sure to include berries, oranges, and apples to promote healthy, glowing skin.

- 9. Invest in a Humidifier

The heat in your home has almost no moisture in it and this can cause just as much dry skin as the frigid air outside. Humidifiers infuse the air in your home with moisture, soothing dry skin.

- 10. Take a Healthy Skin Promoting Supplement

If you can't change your eating habits during the winter, the next best thing is taking a skin-promoting supplement such as Fish Oil. This will leave your skin feeling soft and smooth even during the coldest days.
